Overview of Ministry- Between May 1991 and December 1996, the International School Project (ISP) trained almost 42,000 public school teachers in 119 cities in Russia, Ukraine and eight other countries in the former Soviet Union and Eastern Europe to use the "JESUS" film and a Bible-based curriculum called "Foundations of Christian Ethics" in their classrooms. Most of these teachers made major changes in their belief systems, going from atheism to a solid belief in God. The CoMission, a unified effort of over 80 organizations and churches, was formed to send teams of 6-10 Westerners to each of these cities for at least one year to follow up and disciple those teachers. This resulted in over 1500 workers going to 53 cities over a six-year period. To date, ISP teams have returned to over 60 cities to work with over 6000 educators, helping them to become leaders and influencers in their schools and communities. Results of these trips have shown that there are thousands of teachers who attended the original Convocations who desire for someone to come and help them learn more.
